Speedy Offense Led Terrors To Victory

Will Meet Fairview In Region 2 Tourney

A fast breaking, hard fighting Glenville Red Terror quintet paced by Bob Reed, Fermen Rhoades, and John Shock, emerged victoriously Feb 24 over a rangy Tanner team 57-45 to hand the Red Terrors their ninth Section 8 trophy in nineteen tries and the right to meet Fairview in the Region 2 tourney at Jane Lew, March 1.

With the gymnasium packed to the brim and every fan tensed on the edge of his seat in a typical tournament final setting, Glenville took the tip-off and went on to score 2 quick goals and it looked for a moment like the Terrors were off to the races. But the scrappy Bulldogs were not to be denied. With the set-shooting of Roy Bush and the rebounding of Frank Cain, they kept right on the Terrors' heels and pulled even 24-24 at halftime. Bud Huff, Glenville forward, was ejected on fouls in the second quarter and his brother, Denzil, did a good job in rebounding and starting the fast break, which proved to be the downfall for the Bulldogs. With Fermen Rhoades and Bob Reed driving to the bucket and John Shock hitting from outside, the Terrors were never seriously threatened thereafter.

In the opening game before a capacity crowd the Tanner Bulldogs downed the Normantown Vikings in a 39-37 thriller which saw neither team unable to shift into high gear. "Chuck" Ellyson paced Tanner, while "Cap" Whitsel led Normantown.

In the second round contest the DeKalb boys of Beecher Reed met

Haymon Boggs, Prosecuting Attorney, Speaks On Court Systems, Civil Cases

"This is the first time I have been to school for a long time," said Mr. Haymond H. Boggs, prosecuting attorney of Gilmer county, who was invited February 6 by Mrs. Lestelle Murphy, history teacher at Glenville high school, to discuss the jurisdiction of courts in the American government class.

"There are three main courts," stated Mr. Boggs, "supreme court, circuit court and justice of peace court. Some counties set up other types."

When asked what a court was, the prosecuting attorney said, "It is a tribunal, established by law to try matters between its citizens and citizens of the state."

Some terms of law he mentioned were "assumpsit", recover damages for breach of contract; "mandamus" compel a public officer to do certain things which he refuses to do; "habeas corpus", writ to acquire of what authority one is detained; "torts", wrong committed against property.

"The justice court can try an action in which the amount does not exceed $300.00," stated Mr. Boggs, "also action of trespass and action to recover rent. The circuit courts can try all civil matters in which the amounts exceeds $50. Criminal matters are tried by the circuit court because this county has no regular criminal court."

Students asked Mr. Boggs to go over the procedure of criminal courts. He explained the difference between first, second and third de-

Dr. Kermit Cook To Be Speaker At Exercises May 17

"Education for What" is the topic chosen by Dr. Kermit A. Cook, associate professor of education at W. Va. University, who will be the speaker at the annual Glenville high school commencement exercises May 17 at 8:00 in the Glenville state college auditorium. Dr. Cook holds a Ph. D. degree and has had experience in teaching and as a principal in West Virginia schools.

Reverend E. M. Comp, local Methodist minister, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at 2:00, Sunday, May 13 in the college auditorium.

PINS ORDERED

Student council pins were ordered for six student council members, Jack Cawthorn, Alice Anne Griffith, Anne Lynne Hickman, Haymond Boggs, David Hall, and Edwina Mackey, the past month. The pins are similar to the ones purchased the past year.

Six College Students Do Directed Teaching

From Glenville state college, February 6, came six student teachers, who began observing teaching procedures at Glenville high school and will either teach or observe class throughout the entire day, this nine weeks. Mr. Nelson Wells, former Sand Fork high school teacher, is their instructor.

Their names and the classes they will teach are: Miss Wanda Burkhammer, Typing I, Bookkeeping, Physical Education 7,8,9,10,11,12; Miss Doris Davis, Home Economics 9-10, Mr. Rex Hardman, Arithmetic 8-9, Algebra I, Chemistry, Science 8; Mr. Bobby Walker, American Government 11-12, History 11, Physical Education 7,8,9,10,11,12; Mr. Billy Stoneking, Physical Education 7,8,9,10,11,12; Mr. James Frame, Physical Education 7,8,9,10,11,12.

Heflin, Fluharty Are Top Salesmen

Morgan Heflin, sixth grader, and Wayne Fluharty, fifth grader, were champion salesmen in a recent subscription drive sponsored by the student council of Glenville high school. Morgan was awarded a trophy for his excellent salesmanship while in the drawing for the watches Wayne Fluharty won.

When the company's share had been deducted, it left $133.00 for the student council. This will be used for the purchase of either a camera or a tape-recorder, say student council members.

Because of the fact that the fifth grade won the contest the high school classes are to give them a party in the near future. Each high school student is required to donate five cents.

Jack Cawthon, Glenville High School's "Marconi," May Choose Radio Vocation

Building and experimenting with radio receivers is the hobby and possibly a future occupation of Jack Cawthon, a junior of Glenville high school.

Jack started his hobby of radio when he sent for a radio crystal, which was advertised in a magazine. After receiving the crystal and some parts, he built a tubeless, batteryless crystal radio, which was a success. After building a second crystal radio, also a success, he built a three-tube short-wave set, and has recently built a five-tube one. Besides building radios, he experiments with a one-tube battery operated transmitter.

When Jack was asked if he planned to get a license to operate an amateur transmitter, he replied: "Maybe someday, as soon as I learn some code."

Jack got much of his experience working at the Glenville high school building at nights during the 1949-50 school term. Mr. Rymer Garrett, science teacher, taught a night class on radio for a group of Boy Scouts, of which Jack was a member.

He also received much help from Mr. Peterson, radio repairman in Glenville, and Harold Ferguson, who owns and operates the only licensed amateur broadcasting station in Gilmer county, whose transmitter, station W8FUS, is located at Tanner and reaches to several states in the U. S. and providences of Canada.

Jack says that he might go into radio as a future occupation. If he does, he plans to get a job with some radio company, such as RCA or GE.

Jack, along with Haymond Boggs, Mr. Rymer Garrett, and Homer Holloway, operated a tape recorder at the Gilmer county music festival the past spring. Jack also helps operate the high school movie projector.

A movie on conservation was shown February 20 in the high school auditorium to all the students.

Ward Brannon, Glenville Sophomore, Plans Drawing, Painting As Profession

"I started drawing when I was knee-high to a grasshopper," says Ward Brannon, a Glenville high school sophomore, who spends much of his time drawing cartoons and painting pictures.

"I started drawing because it came easy for me and for the pleasure I get from it," he stated.

Ward is now taking a drawing course from the Cartoonist Exchange Company in Ohio. After completing the drawing course, which will take about two and one-half years, he plans to take about one semester of a course in oil painting. When he has completed the drawing course, he will receive a diploma, but he wants to learn more about oil painting, so that when he isn't drawing cartoons, he can rely on painting to make some extra money.

Ward says he likes cartoon drawing best, but enjoys painting too.

"I do my painting at night, when I can get more ideas, but I draw all the time," he says.

Besides drawing and painting, which he expects to continue as a profession, Ward has a hobby of collecting vases and other articles from foreign countries. Some of the vases that he has are from Mexico, Japan, and Indonesia.

"What I like best is a cream pitcher from Italy," remarked Ward.

He also has articles from Germany, Puerto Rico, England, and France.

Ward's present occupation is popping corn at the Glenville Pictureland theater. He has a private stand at the fairgrounds for selling such articles as candy and soft drinks at the fair and other such activities.

WELL DONE, MRS. BUTCHER!

Mrs. Butcher, tenth grade sponsor, has done an excellent job in supervising the hot lunch program of our school. Other than preparing the menu for our meals and being responsible for the buying of the food, Mrs. Butcher devises ways of making the hot lunch room more pleasant.

The eye-catching posters in the hot lunch room, which were supplied by Mrs. Butcher and display the foods that should be contained in a well balanced meal are characteristic of the meals which are provided for us.

Our hats go off to you, Mrs. Butcher, in our appreciation of your enthusiasm in facing your great responsibilities.

WHAT NOW, LITTLE MAN?

The grade students of Glenville school are energetic, ambitious boys and girls who enjoy their recess. They like to play games of any kind at any time and do not complain about the provisions of their playground, which is very small, hilly and inadequate.

An Open Letter

(Ed. Note: Following is a reply to Joe Floyd's recent Satellite editorial in which he urged the drafting of all eighteen-year-olds.)

February 10, 1951
Lackland Air Force Base
San Antonio, Texas

Joe Floyd
Glenville, West Virginia
c/o Satellite

The editorial you wrote in the February 5 Satellite is a little wrong, so we think. When you take an eighteen-year-old boy and put him in the army for thirty-six months, you will take from him three of his best years in which he is building up his ideals and ambitions for future life.

who wouldn't have been good men. Well, it will also change good little boys, as we call them, to drink, smoke, plus many other bad habits. As for eighteen-year-olds not being set in their ways, if you had some way of telling, you would find out that they are just as set in their ways as the older men but don't show it as much.

As for worries, all men in combat have a tremendous amount of worry, but there is no cardinal point which to differentiate the kind of worry the men in combat are doing, but you can be sure that self preservation is the most predominate thought at that time.

We still have a good many arguments against your editorial which would take a great deal of time to put on paper; so, we will close with this thought. Think twice before you write another editorial like you did in the February 5 Satellite.

Yours truly,
John A. Adams, Alumni:
Raymond L. Drury, Jr. -
Pittsburgh, Penn.
Private Francis Frymter, Alumni.

HERE'S OUR ANSWER!

In answer to a letter received recently by the Satellite staff from Pvt. John A. Adams, Pvt. Millard Frymter and Robert Drury jr, we wish to say that we are very much pleased that some one has even taken the time to take issue with one of our articles. It seems these boys disagree with many points stressed in an editorial in February 5 Satellite about draft of eighteen-year-olds.

Point No. 1 — They say the eighteen-year-olds should not lose 36 months in the service at a time when they should be building up ideals for future life. But they forget that the 28 year old veterans, which they are in favor of taking again, also had to miss those vital three years of training.

Point No. 2 — They stated that they thought the older man would have more "guts" than the eighteen-year-old because his mind is not mature. It looks to me as though this would be all the more reason for eighteen-year-olds having more "guts", because they would do things before thinking about the seriousness of it.

Point No. 3 — They say they aren't in favor of sending the vets into combat, but would keep them as teachers for other men. If these boys aren't in favor of sending the vets or the 18 year olds into combat, who, then are they in favor of sending? It seems to me the Salvation Army is about all that remains. After all, everyone can't be a teacher!

Point No. 4 — They say the 18 year old is just as much set in his ways as an older man. Top military men and educators have said that the younger man is more apt to learn and do as he is told than an older man.

Point No. 5 — They say all men in combat have a tremendous amount of worry, which is true, but a man who has to worry about keeping himself as well as his family alive isn't going to be as efficient as an 18 year-old boy with one objective — himself.

We are glad these boys have taken the time to discuss this subject, and if they have any further arguments we will be glad to hear from them.

CLASSROOM — BEAUTY PARLOR?

There is a time and place for everything and that certainly includes the combing of hair in class and the applying of lip-stick.

In combing your hair in class you are distracting your interest in your lesson and the persons behind you. No student likes to see a teacher or student sit and primp all day in front of her compact. There are other places for you to comb your hair and apply lipstick besides in your class room.

WITH THE ALUMNI

History is in the making this month in room 19 during American history class as Tommy Hyer, noted for his originality, carries the torch of Andrew Jackson, the famous speech-maker who said, "We have not yet begun to fight."

The "beat" of the antique drum has been missed at the high school basketball games because of an unfortunate accident which occurred at the Sand Fork game when the super-human strength of "Atlas" Gerry McGinnis, asserted itself.

Many cries of alarm were uttered by the Normantown fans when Barbara Clark, undaunted acrobatic junior high cheerleader, did the split in one of her peppy yells while she was urging the Little Red Terrors on to victory.

The high school and junior high students combined to form the best cheering section of the year at Sand Fork during the junior high tournament. The "Little Red Terrors", despite their magnificent backing, lost to the "Little Lions" 30-10.

Speaking of basketball, the scrappy school girls lost in a thrilling exhibition February 19 to a team of college girls, 30-20. In the good old days girls basketball games were not infrequent, but now the high school doesn't have a girls basketball team with regularly scheduled games.

It has been rumored that Wane-ma Davidson desires to enroll in the "Oral Penmanship" class which was originated by Mr. Wolfe, providing she can learn to spell.

Mrs. Linn B. Hickman, Glenville high school librarian, was acting principal Monday, February 5, while Mr. Stennett was in Charleston.

A new shipment of tools has been ordered by Mr. Rymer Garrett to be used by the Glenville high school Manual training department.

VIKINGS NIP WOLFEMEN

REDSKINS FALL, 60-47

The red hot Glenville Red Terrors ran rampant 60-47 over Little Ten Conference leaders, the Jane Lew Redskins Monday Feb. 5. The Terrors jumped to a 16-8 first period lead, but Jane Lew came back strong in the second canto as Mitchell's long goal a few seconds before the half left Glenville with only a 3 point lead. With Bob Reed and Ferman Rhoades hitting from all sides, the Terrors gradually pulled away to hand Jane Lew their second defeat of the season. Bob Reed paced the Glenville scoring attack with 19 points while Metzgar and Rinehart topped Jane Lew scorers with 15 and 11 respectively.

TERRORS TOPPLE BRUINS

Burnsville's "rafter roamers" were defeated by Glenville for the second time this season as the Terrors coped a 70-54 decision on the Braxton county floor February 9. Bob Reed led the winners with 24, while Cobb tossed in 15 for the losers.

Coach Wolfe acted as principal, the 26th, 27th, and 28th of February, during the absence of Mr. Stennett, who was ill.

Record-Breaking Winter Rages As School Students Receive Vacations

Many people who have lived in Glenville for several years say, "The snowfall, which occurred during the past November, was one of the worst known in the history of Gilmer county."

"I cannot remember a snow that was deeper," quoted Harry Hoover, Glenville high school janitor.

Glenville high school students were given two days vacation for the Thanksgiving holiday, November 23, planning to return on the following Monday. On the 24 snow began to fall, piling up to a record-breaking depth, causing roads to be blocked in many parts of the state, making it impossible for the transport of students in school buses. Students from all over Gilmer county did not resume classes during the following week. On Monday after the snow, rain along with the melting snow forced the Little Kanawha river over it's banks causing another day's delay in schools.

Another flood, nearly equal to the one the past June, took place February 1-2. This time the river rose to a maximum depth of 31.2 feet at 10:30 p. m. Thursday, February 1. Students of Glenville elementary and high schools were dismissed at noon Thursday and did not return until Monday, February 5.

Not only will this winter be remembered for it's floods and record snowfall, but very cold temperatures have been recorded throughout West Virginia, as well as other states. During the past February flood temperatures as low as 10 degrees fahrenheit caused shivers throughout Glenville and all of Gilmer county.

Many of the students enjoyed the vacations, but others weren't so happy about it, because much damage was done to homes and other personal property.

Glenville's Lone "Uncle Remus" Claims Distant Relationship To Joe Louis

By Wanda Davidson
Swing low, sweet chariot
Comin' for to carry me home
Swing low, sweet chariot
Comin' for to carry me home.

As the refrains of this old song echoed out into the night, thoughts turn to the days when this song was an old favorite. This familiar tune was sung by Mr. Charlie Hannibal Lewis, Glenville's lone "Uncle Remus", in a program which had as its theme racial equality, given at the Glenville Presbyterian church February 11.

Mr. Lewis has lived in Gilmer county for 47 years, moving here from Fairmont in a wagon. He is 74 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 175 pounds and is a "jack of all trades." He has been a cook at the college, hodcarrier, help build approximately 21 buildings in Glenville, including the college science hall, gym, library and the dormitories; mortar mixer, gardener, and butcherer. He was a jockey and horse trainer at Beverly and Elkins.

"At one time I boxed a little too," stated 'Uncle Remus' Lewis. "In an exhibition boxing match I knocked out my opponent in the sixth round. I am distantly related to Joe Lewis," he chuckled.

Besides being a great story teller, Mr. Lewis also plays the banjo and sings. He sang with a choir which played in Glenville for four weeks.

"I like this town and the people," said the friendly old negro, "and I have a lot of friends around here. I think the girls like me pretty well too."

Mr. Lewis has two daughters, 10 grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren, all of whom are living. He has been married for 52 years.

"I married my wife two months after I met her," said Mr. Lewis. "I thought she was a nice looking girl, and she was a grand cook. We were married in Tucker county."

"TERRORS" CAPTURE

with unexpected stiff opposition from Alton Peters' Sand Fork five in a 50-45 victory. The Lions jumped to an early lead and held a 9 point halftime advantage. But Tanner came back the second half, having been revived and gradually overcame this lead, and pulled a "Merriwell" finish to down the Lions in the last 45 seconds of play. Miller and Wilmoth turned in brilliant performances for Sand Fork, while Frank Cain led Tanner.

In the nightcap the Red Terrors, making their first appearance in the journey, reigned victorious over Troy 55-40 after being in hot water all of the first half. Fernen Rhoades and John Shock paced Glenville while Ray and Edsil Burkhammer had good nights for Troy.

In the consolation game the Trojans came from behind to down the luckless Sand Fork Lions in a 46-47 contest. Sharpshooting of Royster and Edsel Burkhammer paced the Troy rally, while Joe Miller and Brent Wilmoth led Sand Fork.
